

“The Spaces, Places, and Virtual Experiences Inspiring Us Right Now,” Goop.com, September 22, 2020

The Spaces, Places, and Virtual Experiences Inspiring Us Right Now

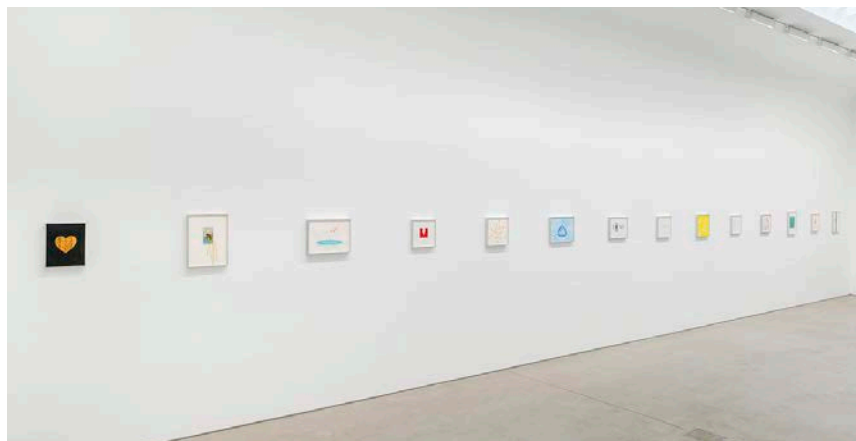

A couple seasons' worth of practical projects (organizing closets and reconfiguring cabinets) and exacting activities (mastering bread baking and martini mixing) merits a sensory shake-up. Here, we've gathered six inspiring exhibits, online explorations, and safe in-person experiences to get your synapses firing.

DAVID KORDANSKY GALLERY ONLINE EXHIBITIONS

We love this Los Angeles gallery for its diverse, dynamic curation and cultural perspectives. From ceramics to sculptural installations, the catalog of exhibitions on David Kordansky Gallery's website covers myriad mediums and points of view, but every single show feels fresh and modern. If you've found yourself constantly refreshing Instagram for inspiration, trust us: Get off the app and keep this tab at the ready. Between the viewing rooms, the exhibition pages, and the one-on-one artist videos, there are plenty of visual rabbit holes to get lost in. Angelenos can also look forward to checking out the gallery's expanded art campus—a three-structure spread with a sculpture-filled courtyard and space for screenings, exhibits, and events when the time is right.

David Kordansky Gallery is currently open by appointment, with exhibitions by Linda Stark and Lesley Vance on view. To give the gallery a long-distance stroll, start here.

Top images: Linda Stark, Hearts, David Kordansky Gallery, Los Angeles, September 19–October 24, 2020, installation view. Photo: Elon Schoenholz. Bottom image: Lesley Vance, A Zebra Races Counterclockwise, David Kordansky Gallery, Los Angeles, September 12–October 24, 2020, installation view. Photo: Jeff McLane